

Writing Studio

In this experiential class participants will be provided with the opportunities to explore and develop their own writing practice. We will use an interdisciplinary approach where other art modalities (visual art, music, movement and drama) are used as a way to both generate and support the writing process.

- Develop your own writing practice
- Learn how to work with personal experiences and memories
- Gain new recourses for writing
- Refresh perspectives on familiar themes
- Deepen the exploration of metaphors and images

Suited for beginners as well as more experienced writers.

Gili Haimovich is a workshops facilitator, intermodal arts therapist and educator with over a decade of experience. As an internationally published writer, translator and editor, Gili specializes in writing-focused expressive arts in private practice and agencies as well as teaching creative writing in Fleming College.

Class Information: The course runs from 6-8pm, on five consecutive Mondays, beginning from April 2nd until April 30th.

Location: 3036 Dundas St. W, Toronto

Fee, includes all arts materials: $150

Early – bird registration fee: $135, must make payment by March 10st

For more information and registration contact Gili at:

gili@poetryon.com, Tel: 416-566-6702 Or visit: www.poetryon.com